Anger

Is it the thing that happened, or what I tell myself about it?

READING · ONE PARAGRAPH

Epictetus, Enchiridion 5. We aren't disturbed by things themselves, but by our judgments about them. Optional: a page from Seneca's On Anger.

BEFORE THE MEETING

Announce on your Substack. Ask people to notice one moment of irritation during the week.

Ground rules; welcome newcomers	Aloud, together	The questions below	Rewrite one judgment	One takeaway each

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. Recall a recent moment of anger. What happened, and what did you tell yourself about it?
2. Seneca thought anger is never useful. Do you agree?
3. What's the difference between anger and a firm, fair response?
4. What would a pause change: counting, walking away, sleeping on it?
5. When you're angry, who is harmed most?

PRACTICE THIS MONTH

Name the judgment. When you're annoyed, finish the sentence "I'm telling myself that…" Then ask whether it's true.

FACILITATOR'S MOVE

"Can you give an example?" Talk about anger stays vague until someone describes a real moment.
